- Lovespace: A website for self-storage services. The header features the "LOVESPACE" logo and a chat icon. The main headline reads "SELF STORAGE WITHOUT THE HASSLE" in large white letters, followed by the tagline "We Collect. We Store. We Deliver." and a yellow "GET STARTED" button.
- Cleanly: A website for on-demand cleaning services. The header is dark purple with the "CLEANLY" logo. The main headline is "Clean laundry, at your fingertips" in purple, with a sub-headline below it.
- Rent the Runway: A website for clothing rentals. The header is white with a navigation menu including "WAYS TO RENT", "DRESSES", "CLOTHING", "OCCASIONS", and "WEDDINGS". A promotional banner offers "20% OFF FIRST ORDER". The main image shows a woman in a dark dress, and the headline partially reads "at Fall Weddings".
- Deliveroo: A food delivery website. The header is teal with the "deliveroo" logo. The main headline is "Your favourite restaurants, delivered fast to your door." Below it is a search bar with the placeholder text "Enter your full address".
- West Elm: A news article titled "West Elm partners with Rent the Runway for bedding rentals" under the "FURNITURE DECOR" category. The article is by Liz Stinson, dated March 11, 2019. It includes social media share icons and a photograph of a modern bedroom interior.

Let's recap

1. The traditional defenses are losing their power — location, accessibility, visibility, zoning, capital, information.
2. Boundaries between asset types are blurring.
3. Competition is shifting to new dimensions — flexibility, service, meaning.
4. The value of an asset is increasingly dependent on its operator.
5. Real Estate assets can be monetized in new and exciting ways.
6. Networks of buildings can create new synergies and value.
7. Companies of various sizes and kinds are suddenly in direct competition.
8. An abundance of venture and PE capital is funding the transformation of the industry.
9. The Channel is becoming as important as the Product.

Back to Churches: What made them so successful to begin with?

1. Focus on the needs & aspirations of specific individuals
2. Have a tangible and intangible value proposition
3. Take the physical world is a given, focus on what's missing
4. Constantly reconsider your alliances & adversaries
5. Leverage network effects (a platform, not an individual asset)
6. Obsessive dedication to documentation and data
7. Align the incentives of all stakeholders
8. Treat uncertainty is an ally

Questions?

What's happening with humans?

In recent decades, nearly all of global population growth has been concentrated in cities with a population of over 1 million, where about 20% of global population currently lives.

About 10,000 people turn 65 in the US each day. The home ownership rate for these retiring Baby Boomers is 75%.

TABLE 1

Homeownership among Baby Boomers, Gen Xers, and Millennials in 2015

Generation	Years born	Age	Population	Current homeownership (%)	Homeownership at age 25–34 (%)
Millennials	1981–97	18–34	75,170,263	32.2%	37.0%
Gen Xers	1965–80	35–50	66,441,487	60.4%	45.4%
Baby boomers	1946–64	51–69	74,649,971	75.0%	45.0%

¹ Pew Urban Institute

The US median house price is around $300,000. Assuming 10% of them are planning to move once they retired — that's $300 million in housing stock hitting the market per day.

General home ownership is close to its lowest point since the 1960s, especially for those under 30.

Even more broadly, the symbolic role of a “home” as a way to define oneself and communicate values is changing.

CRITIC'S NOTEBOOK

The Existential Void of the Pop-Up ‘Experience’

I went to as many Instagramable “museums,” “factories” and “mansions” as I could. They nearly broke me.

But “millennials” are not the only ones with declining home ownership. Other generations are increasingly renters as well.

Rent is outpacing income growth, encouraging people to live with roommates. In big cities, sharing an apartment can lead to dramatic savings.
