

Brian Miller has more than 17 years of real estate experience, spanning on-site leasing to executive leadership roles. He is a national speaker in the multifamily and single-family rental space, drawing from his background as a data-focused multifamily marketer. His work focuses on leading Zillow's engagement with partners and associations through strategic networking, education, and industry involvement. He champions the voice of rental partners across Zillow's product, sales, and marketing teams, shaping solutions that advance the company's mission of helping more people find home.