

Mischa Fisher is the Chief Economist for Zillow Group and an applied statistics instructor at Northwestern University. He has served as a chief economist in both the public and private sectors, led product data science in the educational technology industry, and held statutory policymaking roles in the U.S. Congress focused on the financial services and commodity markets.