The rise of touchless tech apartment amenities in the wake of COVID-19

The pandemic has prompted some multifamily operators to carefully consider the type of services and amenities that are important to their residents. According to a recent survey by the National Multifamily Housing Council (NMHC), touchless technology is consistently ranked as one of the most popular amenities.