CONGRESSIONAL NEGOTIATIONS STALL AS PRESIDENT THREATENS EXECUTIVE ORDER ON EVICTIONS

Talks on the next COVID-19 relief package have stalled as Senate and House members have gone home to wait for word from their leadership regarding if and when consensus will be reached.

Significant differences remain on both the size and scope of the package – with Republicans seeking a $1 Trillion package and Democrats pushing for a $3+ trillion package. The major sticking points for the next relief package continue to be state and local aid and the amount for an enhanced federal unemployment benefit extension.

NMHC is continuing to push for direct financial assistance for renters who are impacted by COVID-19, while making the point that a prolonged eviction moratorium is unsustainable. And critically, a moratorium without rental assistance does nothing to address a renter’s underlying financial distress and creates the conditions for significant instability within the housing sector.

DOUG BIBBY: RENT CONTROL ROLLS ON

The challenges around COVID-19 have taken precedence for many states and jurisdictions, temporarily slowing down rent control's spread. However, we anticipate that significant momentum in this direction will build again from now into 2021.

Most notably, there is once again a critical ballot initiative in California set for November that would allow cities to cap rents forever. Moreover, we are seeing many new legislative and legal policies being put in place as COVID-19 mitigation strategies. In many cases, those policies that could easily accelerate rent control's expansion post-pandemic.
This week, FHFA announced that all multifamily property owners with Enterprise-backed mortgages who enter into a forbearance agreement must inform residents of their tenant protections. While in forbearance, these multifamily property owners must agree not to evict tenants solely for nonpayment of rent.
NMHC TAX POLICY UPDATE: IRS ISSUES REGULATIONS

NMHC Vice President of Tax Matthew Berger provides updates on two new tax policy developments. Click here to read about the IRS's recently issued final business interest deductibility regulations that favorably address issues NMHC had previously raised. The IRS also issued long-awaited proposed carried interest regulations this week. Also, be sure to read Berger’s update on the IRS’s recent issuance of long-awaited proposed carried interest regulations.
With the federal unemployment benefits and eviction moratoriums expiring on July 31 and Congress still debating a new stimulus package, industry stakeholders are carefully watching how collections go for the first week of August. NMHC's Rent Payment Tracker will release results Monday, Aug. 10 at 9:00 am ET and host a webinar at 11:30 am ET, featuring executives from the five leading property management software providers and Walt Smith, CEO of Avenue5 Residential.
NMHC FALL MEETING GOES VIRTUAL (SEPT. 14-17)

While the risks around COVID-19 are preventing us from gathering in person for the Fall Meeting, NMHC will still be connecting you virtually with top-ranking congressional and administration leaders, political forecasters and timely and relevant speakers.

Registration is complimentary and open to all employees of NMHC member firms. The first 300 registrants will receive a special “goodie” bag compliments of NMHC's sponsors.

TRUMP IS CALLING FOR ANOTHER MORATORIUM ON EVICTIONS. LANDLORDS ARE PUSHING BACK.

As negotiations over another coronavirus relief package inch forward on Capitol Hill, President Trump has repeatedly promised over the last week that he would step in to help the millions of people vulnerable to eviction. But reinstating a federal moratorium doesn't adequately support renters or ensure the stability of the housing industry.
LAPSE IN EXTRA UNEMPLOYMENT BENEFITS TO HURT U.S. RECOVERY, ECONOMISTS SAY

The federally expanded unemployment benefits expired last week, which economists fear could lead to “a sharp drop-off in household spending and a setback for the U.S. economy’s near-term recovery.”

YALE STUDY FINDS EXPANDED JOBLESS BENEFITS DID NOT REDUCE EMPLOYMENT

New research on the effects of the $600 enhanced unemployment benefit provided by the CARES Act from Yale University concludes, “It has been hypothesized that such high benefits encourage employers to lay off workers and discourage workers from returning to work. … We find no evidence that generous benefits disincentivized work either at the onset of the expansion or as firms looked to return to business over time.”

CORONAVIRUS RELIEF FAVORS WHITE HOUSEHOLDS, LEAVING BLACK AND OTHER MINORITY TENANTS EXPOSED TO EVICTION
Federal housing aid during the coronavirus pandemic disproportionately benefits white households over minorities, with Black households most at risk, according to recent POLITICO analysis.

HUD UPDATES MULTIFAMILY Q&A FOR COVID-19
This week, HUD updated their Multifamily COVID-19 FAQ document, which includes guidance on the eviction moratorium for properties in forbearance, face coverings and COVID-19 testing, income calculation and recertifications and alternate procedures for Capital Needs Assessments (CNAs) and Management and Occupancy Reviews (MORs).
APARTMENT INDUSTRY WEIGHS IN ON PAYCHECK PROTECTION PROGRAM

This week, NMHC signed two letters regarding the Paycheck Protection Program (PPP). The first letter, signed by over 180 organizations, requests that the next round of COVID-19 relief legislation enable taxpayers with forgiven PPP loans to fully deduct expenses paid with the proceeds. In the second letter, the multifamily industry joined other organizations to request that legislation authorizing a second PPP loan make it easier for eligible small businesses to qualify.
