Although much uncertainty remains regarding which candidate will come out on top, NMHC continues to analyze the decisions under the Trump Administration, the Trump campaign continues to call into question how several provisions included in the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act (TCJA) enacted. This week's vice presidential debate brought each candidate's tax plan to the forefront yet again. During the debate, the VP candidates discussed the need to provide assistance to both tenants and landlords, such as eviction moratoriums, rental assistance and financial resources and research.

Eviction filings since COVID-19 hit in mid-March have plunged—even in cities without eviction bans. Why? It is hard to keep track of exactly where things stand on the next extension of an eviction moratorium and the importance of maintaining or extending existing moratoriums in light of urgent pressing issues facing the industry reside at the state and local level this November—including the November 3rd election. And while much of the focus has been on housing, and rightly so, some of the most pressing issues facing the industry reside at the state and local level this November. The pandemic has brought new challenges for public housing agencies (PHAs) as they try to deliver services in the most effective and efficient manner—while safely serving their residents. The webinar will focus on ways that public housing agencies (PHAs) can use technology to improve relationships with landlords, provide landlords with access to information and ease the concerns and frustrations that landlords have with the inspections process. Reforming the Section 8 HCV program has been a long-time priority of NMHC's. We believe that the public-private program could be the nation's most effective affordable housing and community development tool. However, it is plagued with inefficiencies, requiring a complete modernization. The webinar will focus on providing landlords with access to information and ease the concerns and frustrations that landlords have with the inspections process. The webinar will focus on ways that public housing agencies (PHAs) can use technology to improve relationships with landlords, provide landlords with access to information and ease the concerns and frustrations that landlords have with the inspections process. Reforming the Section 8 HCV program has been a long-time priority of NMHC's. We believe that the public-private program could be the nation's most effective affordable housing and community development tool. However, it is plagued with inefficiencies, requiring a complete modernization.

PITCH YOUR INNOVATIVE NEW PRODUCT OR SERVICE AT OPTECH 2020
Back by popular demand, NMHC is hosting its second annual OpTech at the 2020 NMHC National Multifamily Industry Conference & Expo at the Las Vegas Convention Center September 13-15. Attendee registration is now open and includes a virtual edition of OpTech, a platform for exhibitors and suppliers to meet with attendees online. The virtual edition of OpTech will be held September 14-15 and will feature a technology overview session and one-on-one networking opportunities for exhibitors and attendees. The virtual edition will allow exhibitors to showcase their products and services to a wider audience.

Singaporean Firm, JBAI, Announces First National Multifamily Industry Compensation Survey
This joint virtual only conference will feature the student housing's best and brightest to pitch your newest multifamily innovation. The Conference recently issued a national multifamily industry compensation survey to provide a comprehensive snapshot of how the multifamily industry compensates employees in 2020. The survey was completed by more than 200 multifamily companies participated in the survey with data submitted for 65,000 employees.

The COVID-19 pandemic accelerated a number of technology trends that were already underway, including the adoption of remote work, with the notable exception of the multifamily industry. This joint virtual only conference will feature the student housing's best and brightest to pitch your newest multifamily innovation. The Conference recently issued a national multifamily industry compensation survey to provide a comprehensive snapshot of how the multifamily industry compensates employees in 2020. The survey was completed by more than 200 multifamily companies participated in the survey with data submitted for 65,000 employees.

WeWork, Regency, Hines, and RXR were among the multifamily companies that participated in the survey. This joint virtual only conference will feature the student housing's best and brightest to pitch your newest multifamily innovation. The Conference recently issued a national multifamily industry compensation survey to provide a comprehensive snapshot of how the multifamily industry compensates employees in 2020. The survey was completed by more than 200 multifamily companies participated in the survey with data submitted for 65,000 employees.

The COVID-19 pandemic accelerated a number of technology trends that were already underway, including the adoption of remote work, with the notable exception of the multifamily industry. This joint virtual only conference will feature the student housing's best and brightest to pitch your newest multifamily innovation. The Conference recently issued a national multifamily industry compensation survey to provide a comprehensive snapshot of how the multifamily industry compensates employees in 2020. The survey was completed by more than 200 multifamily companies participated in the survey with data submitted for 65,000 employees.

The COVID-19 pandemic accelerated a number of technology trends that were already underway, including the adoption of remote work, with the notable exception of the multifamily industry. This joint virtual only conference will feature the student housing's best and brightest to pitch your newest multifamily innovation. The Conference recently issued a national multifamily industry compensation survey to provide a comprehensive snapshot of how the multifamily industry compensates employees in 2020. The survey was completed by more than 200 multifamily companies participated in the survey with data submitted for 65,000 employees.

judgment of some provisions included within the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act (TCJA) enacted under the Trump Administration, the Trump campaign continues to call into question how several provisions included in. This week's vice presidential debate brought each candidate's tax plan to the forefront yet again. During the debate, the VP candidates discussed the need to provide assistance to both tenants and landlords, such as eviction moratoriums, rental assistance and financial resources and research.

Eviction filings since COVID-19 hit in mid-March have plunged—even in cities without eviction bans. Why? It is hard to keep track of exactly where things stand on the next extension of an eviction moratorium and the importance of maintaining or extending existing moratoriums in light of urgent pressing issues facing the industry reside at the state and local level this November. And while much of the focus has been on housing, and rightly so, some of the most pressing issues facing the industry reside at the state and local level this November. The pandemic has brought new challenges for public housing agencies (PHAs) as they try to deliver services in the most effective and efficient manner—while safely serving their residents. The webinar will focus on ways that public housing agencies (PHAs) can use technology to improve relationships with landlords, provide landlords with access to information and ease the concerns and frustrations that landlords have with the inspections process. Reforming the Section 8 HCV program has been a long-time priority of NMHC's. We believe that the public-private program could be the nation's most effective affordable housing and community development tool. However, it is plagued with inefficiencies, requiring a complete modernization. The webinar will focus on providing landlords with access to information and ease the concerns and frustrations that landlords have with the inspections process. Reforming the Section 8 HCV program has been a long-time priority of NMHC's. We believe that the public-private program could be the nation's most effective affordable housing and community development tool. However, it is plagued with inefficiencies, requiring a complete modernization.

PITCH YOUR INNOVATIVE NEW PRODUCT OR SERVICE AT OPTECH 2020
Back by popular demand, NMHC is hosting its second annual OpTech at the 2020 NMHC National Multifamily Industry Conference & Expo at the Las Vegas Convention Center September 13-15. Attendee registration is now open and includes a virtual edition of OpTech, a platform for exhibitors and suppliers to meet with attendees online. The virtual edition of OpTech will be held September 14-15 and will feature a technology overview session and one-on-one networking opportunities for exhibitors and attendees. The virtual edition will allow exhibitors to showcase their products and services to a wider audience.

Singaporean Firm, JBAI, Announces First National Multifamily Industry Compensation Survey
This joint virtual only conference will feature the student housing's best and brightest to pitch your newest multifamily innovation. The Conference recently issued a national multifamily industry compensation survey to provide a comprehensive snapshot of how the multifamily industry compensates employees in 2020. The survey was completed by more than 200 multifamily companies participated in the survey with data submitted for 65,000 employees.